

TIPPS FOR SELF-PACED PROGRAM SUCCESS

A flexible study program like this one, with many ways of acquiring knowledge, can sometimes seem quite overwhelming to you. To help you stay on track, we have put together a few tips for you.

Manage your time

- Self-paced programs like these are not bound to semester dates or deadlines.
- Don't let this advantage become your drawback by keeping an eye on your time management.
- Set your own goals for your learning progress and keep in mind the suggested time frame by the department.

Set up your perfect learning environment

- A self-paced program gives you multiple options when it comes to where you learn.
- Some students benefit from changing their learning environment. Others need their fixed learning space. Find out what suits you best.
- Our flexible self-paced program supports you in this.

All you need is eStudy campus

- Take your time and get to know our eStudy campus. It offers you everything you need for a successful study.
- It covers administrative matters, provides you with relevant information about your studies, offers you learning content in multimedia formats and represents your virtual seminar room.
- eStudy campus is the platform to get in touch with your lecturers, your MCI study buddy, the academic staff and your fellow students.

Seek help – from the beginning

- Self-paced study programs can also be challenging. Do not hesitate to contact us right away to discuss possible solutions.
- Regular academic counseling sessions offer you the opportunity to get in touch with your lecturers. Your MCI study buddy and the academic staff of the department will also support you in all aspects.
- Together we will find a solution to your struggles.

Well done! Now you can celebrate your successful graduation.
