“My internship in Kenya pushed me well out of my comfort zone. It helped me grow personally, gave me new perspectives on the world, and prompted me to reflect more critically on my own privileged lived reality. My time there left a lasting mark on me and shaped my path—in the end, that internship even became my home, because today I live in Kenya.”

"My semester abroad in Warsaw was a formative experience that advanced me tremendously both academically and personally. What I found particularly enriching was the international environment, where I gained new perspectives and built valuable intercultural competencies. At the same time, living in a dynamic, up-and-coming city taught me to be flexible and to adapt quickly to new challenges."

“During my internship, I had the opportunity to represent the “Presseball Berlin” at the Golden Foot Award Gala at the Yacht Club in Monaco. Alongside Prince Albert II of Monaco, international football stars such as Gianluigi Buffon attended the event. To my surprise, Carles Puyol was seated right next to me, which brought quite a bit of media attention to our table. As someone who is not really into football and as an intern, the situation felt a little overwhelming at first. But I quickly got into conversations, and being a “farm girl” from the Ötztal made me an unexpected but interesting person to talk to for many guests. The evening taught me a lot about staying open, confident, and adaptable in unfamiliar situations.

This picture was later shared on the Instagram profile of an Italian influencer.”

“The semester abroad in China was probably the most formative and special time of my studies. From finding housing to finding food, everything was an adventure. And only those who are brave can win (and stay full). At the same time, it showed how important it is to be able to adapt to new environments and organize oneself responsibly. My studies at MCI laid the foundation for this, and many situations from that time now appear in adapted form in my job as a manager in the pharmaceutical industry. It truly was one of the best times of my studies, and I still maintain contacts from that period.”

“MCI opened up a wide range of opportunities for me, and I tried to embrace them as fully as I could. Thanks to MCI, I had the chance not only to spend a semester abroad in Argentina, but also to complete an international internship in Turkey. MCI did more than simply make these experiences possible. It consistently encouraged us as students to grow both professionally and personally, and to expand our horizons. Looking back, I feel deeply grateful for these opportunities, as they helped me discover the path that ultimately brought my talents and passions to life. “Mentoring the motivated” is far more than just a slogan. Happy 30th anniversary, dear MCI!”

"Living in Montreal allowed me to experience cultural differences first-hand and gain a deeper understanding of the North American way of thinking compared to Europe. It also improved my French skills and taught me how to quickly adapt to new environments, strengthening both my personal independence and professional flexibility. In addition, I had the opportunity to explore Canada's unique wildlife, which made the experience even more enriching."
